

Create safe havens for kids

Instead of just blaming the families of victims of violence, why not implement solutions that work for safety and progress in areas of violence and crime such as community centers and youth centers?

They must be built along with other improvements in the Hudson Avenue area. Children need a safe environment to play and learn in their homes and in their neighborhood.

The community must do more with business investments, educational facilities and religious institutions, creating a positive environment by expanding their presence through redevelopment and new development for the safety and success of all people.
